MARIAN WALDMAN

On Our Cover

JOHN DRAINIE

At 40, John Drainie can project with his voice youthful dashing exuberance or an old man's crotchety impatience — versatility he has used hundreds of times since his successful audition 19 years ago for CBC Radio.

The many voices of Mr. Drainie can be heard Monday through Friday in the popular series "John Drainie Tells a Story," on the Trans-Canada Network.

About This Issue . . .

Readers will miss seeing information about some of their favourite programs in this issue. Press deadlines were one day earlier than usual, because of the Good Friday holiday. You are urged to watch the "Late Notes" columns of our next issue for corrections and additional information.

EVER WONDER how some writers can continue to produce highly-creative work from year to year without ever seeming to run dry? The answer, according to successful playwright Marian Waldman, is quite simple.

"The more work you do, the more you are stimulated to do," she told us recently when she dropped into our office to give us some details of her new radio serial, Kapitan's Fortune. Once you have gained confidence in yourself as a writer, everyday events suggest to you ideas for more plays.

"For example, the basic plot of Kapitan's Fortune was suggested to me by the murder, about a year ago, of a second-hand store proprietor in Winnipeg's slums. Not that the plot is based on fact—but a murder similar to the actual one serves to get the plot rolling."

Central figures in the plot are Dave Hunter, a plumber in a mid-western Canadian city, and his wife Beth, played by Cec Montgomery and Corinne Langston. The couple inherit an old run-down house in a neighbourhood that long ago ceased to be stylish. The house is supposed to be unoccupied, but a surprise awaits them when they enter it.

"This locale, in a neighbourhood of mixed population, gives me an opportunity to mix international flavour into the plot," Miss Waldman points out. The flavour evidently is to the liking of many people, as the series, which started April 3, already has won an avid group of listeners.

Marian Waldman has had many successes in her career, which now spans a dozen years. For example, many will remember fondly the TV series Dancing Storybook, a 13-week serial about a young couple who danced with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet. More recently, she and her husband, Mort Forer, were authors of the TV drama Have One on Sam, which received praise from many who saw it on CBWT.

Dozens of her radio plays have been produced on Prairie Playhouse. She was author of the special Christmas show, Queen of Seasons, and the hour-long drama on Summer Stage, A World Transplanted. Several of her plays have been heard and seen on the school broadcasts and telecasts.

Miss Waldman became a professional actress 14 years ago, with the CBC in Winnipeg. Then she moved to Toronto, where soon she began to write as well as act. First she sold one short drama to the CBC, and then really entered the field with an adaptation of Huckleberry Finn for Andrew Allan's Stage '46. That same year she wrote a one-hour family tragedy, This Man Was My Father, drawing on her rich knowledge of the Jewish people.

She continued to write for Andrew Allan's productions during 1947 and 1948, until her marriage to Mort Forer brought her back to Winnipeg, where her husband was editor of the Jewish Post. Four years ago Mr. Forer retired, and now both he and his wife are playwrights, with the CBC as their major market.

We asked Miss Waldman what her advice would be for young persons desiring to become playwrights. Her reply: "If you are unable to act, watch and analyze. Soon you will get to know what is required in writing a drama."

Of the contrast between TV and radio drama, she says, "Both have their advantages for the playwright, and both have their limitations. A radio writer, moving to television, has to become able to think 'visually.' And a television writer, moving to radio, must remember that characterization can no longer come from costuming and makeup."

THE CLOAK of ignorance surrounding the mentally retarded in Canada is slowly being removed.

Through publicity in newspapers, the work of government departments and the activities of organizations such as provincial and Canadian associations for retarded children, the general public is becoming more aware of the necessity and urgency of helping the mentally retarded.

Based on population and birth rate figures, there is a retarded child born in Canada every 25 minutes. Mental retardation affects about three per cent of the population—an estimated 535,000 of all ages throughout Canada.

A few years ago the attitude of the public in general was different to that of today.

"In fact there wasn't much attitude," says Dr. B. N. McNeel, chief of the mental health branch of the Ontario Department of Health. "These problems were just pushed off to the side and people didn't pay much attention to them."

"But if you go back even before that, I think there was quite an accepting attitude because there was a time when these youngsters were kept in their own communities and people accepted it, to a reasonable degree."

"Back 50 to 75 years ago there was a very small proportion of mentally retarded children who were in institutions. This increase became much more rapid as the years went on because a changing attitude of non-acceptance began to develop."

It wasn't long ago that parents were somewhat afraid to talk about children afflicted with mental retardation; they were afraid the neighbours or "friends" might refer to them as the mother and

The Case of the Abominable Snowman

A case that even Perry Mason might find too challenging is to be investigated Sunday, April 9, on the new program "Venture"

WERE SIR EDMUND HILLARY and his Sherpa guide, Tenzing, the first men to reach the top of Mount Everest or were they beaten to the feat by the Abominable Snowman?

For all we know, the Abominable Snowman, if he exists, could well have made the top of Everest his own private playground long before Hillary and Tenzing decided to climb the gigantic mountain.

Even Erle Stanley Gardner would have trouble matching the mystery surrounding The Case of the Abominable Snowman. First of all, is this "man" a human or is he just a big ape; or even part man and part beast? The puzzle has kept men guessing and searching for at least the better part of a century and about the only known fact is that if the creature exists it certainly wouldn't win a beauty contest.

If you want to believe the natives, the creature looks something like a man except that he is often bigger—as tall as eight feet—and is covered with hair except for his face and hands. He has been "seen" doing all kinds of primitive things, such as bouncing around on his hind legs, occasionally using all fours; piling stones and pieces of wood into little mounds; sitting on boulders, eating rabbit; and even devouring humans.

There are conflicting reports as to when this creature first made tracks in the snow atop the peaks of the Himalayas. Some sources say reports of the elusive giant were traced as far back as 1427. Others set the time in the late 1800's.

The Sherpas, a mountain people of Tibetan stock who live high in the Himalayas, believe that the creatures, whom they call yeti, have been roaming the mountain peaks and sometimes wandering down to lower levels for hundreds of years.

These people honestly believe that the yeti is superhuman and to look upon it means death. That is why for many years no good description could be obtained.

The Western (or civilized) world first became aware of this monster apparently in 1877 when a British mountaineer, Col. W. A. Waddell, discovered some unidentifiable tracks while he was trudging across a 16,000-foot-high snow field in Sikkim. Waddell described them as the feet of a giant but they were in a place where no one would expect to find a human at all, let alone one walking in bare feet.

In 1906, Henry J. Elwes, a botanist and Himalayan explorer, reported that he not only saw the yeti's tracks but also the hairy creature itself, racing over a ridge in the distance.

Fifteen years later Lt. Col. C. K. Howard-Bury, who was leading the first expedition to attempt the climb of Everest, told the world he spotted what appeared to be "an unclothed, hairy but human form walking slowly across a snow field" (Please turn to page 13)

Publish Shakespeare Talks

SEVEN RADIO TALKS on Shakespeare form the subject matter of the latest book to issue from the CBC's Publications Branch in Toronto. The talks are by David Galloway, M.C., M.A., an associate professor of English at the University of New Brunswick, and were delivered in the CBC's University of the Air series late in 1960.

David Galloway, born in Ayrshire, was educated in Scottish and English schools and at Selwyn College, Cambridge (honours history and English). He served for five years as an officer in the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders during the Second World War, chiefly in the Mediterranean area. He has been a member of the department of English at New Brunswick University since 1948.

Professor Galloway's publications include short stories and articles on Shakespeare and the Elizabethan era, and he has been a frequent broadcaster on CBC. He spent a year at the Shakespeare Institute, Stratford-upon-Avon, with the aid of a fellowship from the Humanities Research Council of Canada.

The collection of talks, entitled simply "Shakespeare," deals with the dramatist and his environment under seven headings: The Eliza- bethan Shakespeare, The Modern Shakespeare, Comedy, History, Tragedy, The Printers and the Text, and The Eternal Shakespeare. The fascinating talk on printing and text gives details of the operation of the Stationers' Register in 16th century London, the "pirating" of play texts and their unauthorized publication in quarto volumes, often extremely bad. The 1600 quarto of Henry V, for example, had only 1,622 lines, compared with 3,300 in the First Folio text edited in 1623 by Shakespeare's acting associates Heminge and Condell.

The enormous labour of textual criticism performed subsequently by Shakespearean editors from Rowe to Furnivall and Dowden and the Cambridge editors, caused largely by these many bad printings, is also discussed. Professor Galloway concludes: "There is still no text of Shakespeare in existence which scholars will wholeheartedly accept, and we are not likely to see a definitive text in our lifetimes. . . . But the work, in all its fascination and drudgery, goes on."

Professor Galloway has interesting observations on the work of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival in Canada.

father of that "idiot down the street who should be in an asylum."

Fortunately, the people who looked disdainfully upon retarded children were in the minority and are becoming even more so as the result of the research and publicity programs by various organizations.

The Ontario Department of Health has taken a step toward the education of the public about mental retardation in the form of a film which has received critical acclaim by those who have seen it.

The film, One On Every Street, was produced for the department by Fletcher Film Productions and will be shown on CBC-TV Sunday afternoon, April 9th.

Pierre Berton, in a recent Toronto Star column, said of the film:

"It is frank in two ways: It does not attempt to pretty up the decrepit buildings which caused headlines earlier this year; it frankly acknowledges that they are old and overcrowded. And it does not attempt to pretty up the patients nor hide their faces in the traditional fashion.

"The message is implicit from the opening shot to the final frame. The film says simply that we all must face up to the facts about retarded children.

"This is a bold, face-the-facts film and any other kind of propaganda picture (which failed to reveal the facts) would have been shameful, nay, criminal."

The facts about mental retardation are startling. Of all the cripples of children, retardation exacts the heaviest toll. The incidence of mental retardation is about 10 times that of polio at its height and about 15 times that of blindness, according to figures released by the Canadian Association For Retarded Children.

An estimated 30 out of every 1,000 children are mentally retarded. Of these 30, one will require constant supervision throughout life, but four can be taught self-care and 25 can become self supporting provided they receive special education.

Such education is available through various sources such as the the hospital schools operated by the government—there are four of these operated by the Ontario Department of Health plus a new diagnostic clinic which is soon to be opened at Cedar Springs—day schools operated by the retarded children associations and sheltered workshops where the less-handicapped children can earn a modest remuneration.

The film, which concludes with an address by Dr. Matthew B. Dymond, minister of health for Ontario, received its title because the number of retarded people in Canada amounts to "one on every street."

Mental retardation is not just a problem for the parents involved. It is a problem for everybody, because every family is vulnerable. More than half of the multitude of causes seem to have no connection with heredity, especially in the more serious cases. They are due instead to diseases or injuries that occur before, during or after birth because of chance circumstances. Any family can be stricken. Therefore it is everybody's problem.

far below." The Sherpa porters with him said this was no ordinary man but "an awesome yeti that killed unguarded yaks and even slew unwary herders."

After Howard-Bury told reporters of his experience, Henry Newman of the Calcutta Statesman interviewed the Sherpas, who fully confirmed the sighting. They called the creature a Kang-Mi, which means "thing of the rocky places." Newman apparently mistranslated the dialect term and the result was the term "Abominable Snowman."

As more and more attempts were made to scale the peaks in the Himalayas, reports of seeing the snowman increased and some of the world's most experienced mountaineers, and scientists of unquestionable integrity reported their experiences.

There have been all kinds of theories expressed as to what this creature is—everything from the Himalayan red bear to wild dogs, wolves and even the missing link between the prehistoric ape and man. Photographs of the snowman's tracks have been taken and a scalp, supposed to be that of a yeti, has been examined by leading scientists and anthropologists (who say the scalp is a fake).

Some scientists doubt that accurate accounts of yeti discoveries can be made because at great altitudes where there is a lack of oxygen humans get light-headed, the blanket of snow and intense sun are blinding and a drink of alcoholic liquor (if anyone dares take one) has very immediate and powerful effects.

Hillary recently offered an explanation for the large footprints of the yeti's track, which resemble those of a human with an oversized big toe. He theorized that footprints in the snow tend to expand in size when under the sun's rays for a period of time.

He followed a set of the strange tracks and when moving into a shaded portion of snow, the tracks

Theme and Variations (Haydn)	Phyllis Ensher
Quando Ti Rivedro (Donaudy)	Clarence Fleiger

Three's Company

Hats, shoes and handbags are highlighted today, with Marilyn Phillips as our fashion expert. Mary Liz Bayer, Bill Guest and Jose Poneira survey the spring accessory picture, and Jose provides music suitable for the occasion.

Roy Rogers Show

Roy is knocked unconscious by a fugitive, The Mingo Kid, who exchanges clothes with him. An outlaw, unaware that Roy is not the fugitive, reveals plans of a bank robbery to him.

Stop, Look and Listen

In the second of his series on hobbies dealing with electricity, Geoff Spurr shows how to make a power supply to provide low voltage for experiments, battery charging, etc.

Your garden guide, Hector MacDonald, tells how to plan a garden. He will show a simple way to measure the proper space and depth for planting.

We have all heard the expression, "clothes make the man." This is certainly the case in the theatre, where the proper costume is essential in creating a character. John Hirsch will discuss the history of costumes, and show how to make and wear them.

The show is produced in Winnipeg by Don Browne-Wilkinson.

CBWT—Father Knows Best

A domestic comedy series starring Robert Young and Jane Wyatt as Mr. and Mrs. Jim Anderson, and Elinor Donahue as their oldest child Betty.

There is trouble at the girls' high school when Betty Anderson is elected queen of the yearly sports banquet, over the dowdy team captain.

ED BISHA

One of the artists featured today on Music in Miniature is 'cellist Ed Bisha. Mr. Bisha also is seen regularly with the Gordon MacPherson orchestra on Reflections.

Tennessee Ernie Ford Show

Ernie's guests are the Everly Brothers, noted singers.

Live a Borrowed Life

Guest panelists for this show are Danica D'Hondt and actor Ivor Barry, joining regulars Bill Walker and Elwy Yost.

CBWT—Sergeant Bilko

Starring Phil Silvers. Another episode in the humorous series depicting the antics of a U.S. Army sergeant and his platoon.

CBWT—Wanted, Dead or Alive

A western series starring Steve McQueen as rough, two-fisted bounty hunter Josh Randall.

Josh Randall faces an assassin's bullet when the leader of a religious sect assigns a young girl to murder him.

ceased to exist. In their place were the small footprints of a fox or wild dog, bunched close together as the animal bounded over the snow. When these small tracks were under the sun, the warmth melted them out, ran them together, completely altered their contours and made "as fine a yeti track as one could wish."

But even Hillary's explanation self-admittedly leaves many questions unanswered and the search for the Abominable Snowman goes on. No one knows yet whether this creature will be found or whether it's all a myth, a legendary monster evolved through the superstitions of the natives who dwell in the mountains.

Some of the experts who have gone on expeditions in search of proof which will either confirm or destroy the story of the Abominable Snowman will be heard this Sunday when CBC radio's Venture presents an hour-long BBC transcription on the subject. Entitled The Abominable Snowman, the program will be heard on CBC Trans-Canada.

Appearing on the program are Prince Peter of Greece, Sir John Hunt, Ella Maillart, Odette Tchernine, Professor C. von Furer-Haimendorf, Dr. W. C. Osman Hill, Ralph Izzard, Eric Sipton, and C. R. Stoner. Gerald Durrell introduces and moderates the program, produced by Terence Tiller.

Shaw—The Ideal Music Critic

"It is a supreme virtue of good criticism that it can be read and learnt from, even when the works and the artists discussed may be wholly unfamiliar. We detect the note of truth. That is why Shaw's volumes have such an appeal. To my mind he is as near to the perfect music critic for the ordinary person as anyone ever has been. Of course he had his blind spots — Brahms, for example — but I do wish we had more like him today."—Alec Robertson, author and Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music, speaking in a BBC program on 'The Function of Music Criticism'.

MARY LIZ BAYER

Popular hostess of Three's Company, Mary Liz Bayer, will be seen on Open House Friday in a special program from Winnipeg.

PROGRAM NOTES

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

Open House

In a special program produced in Winnipeg, viewers will meet some interesting Manitobans. Host and hostess are Bill Guest and Mary Liz Bayer, who regularly appear on Three's Company.

First guest, Mrs. J. M. Harris, has collected antiques for years. Three years ago she turned her hobby into a business, starting an antique shop in an old house in suburban Winnipeg. Viewers will see some of her collection, ranging from pioneer items to the very exotic.

Paul Hiebert, another guest, is a retired chemistry professor who lives in Carman, 50 miles southwest of Winnipeg. He is also a writer and poet, and he talks about poets of the west with Mary Liz, who also writes poetry. One of the poets talked about will be Sarah Binks, who has been called the "Sweet Songstress of Saskatchewan."

A third guest is Mrs. Margaret McLeod, historian. Her latest book, Folk Songs of Manitoba, includes a charming song by Louis Riel. As a tribute, we will discuss Mrs. McLeod's work and hear some of her songs sung by Georges LaFleche.

Finally, viewers will hear about St. John's Cathedral Boy's School, an unique experiment in education. Boys from 10 to 18 attend this school on the weekends, learning such things as logic, Latin, literature and how to handle a set of snow shoes. A student, a parent-founder and an educator discuss this project.

CBWT—Three's Company

Mrs. Ralph Thompson visits the program to tell viewers about the Junior League Book Fair. Gerline Crawford continues her popular sewing instruction and Mrs. Gladys Winter concludes her review of activities of the United Nations Society in Manitoba.

On Safari in Asia

First program in a new series, subtitled First Stop Bangkok. Armand and Michaela Denis start their camera journey of Asia, showing scenes of Bangkok, the capital of Thailand. A monkey is entertained at tea, and shots are shown of a Siamese boxing match, in which the feet are used as well as the hands.

Country Hoedown

Western and country-style music and dancing, hosted by Gordie Tapp. Mary Frances, Tommy Common, Tommy Hunter, the Hames Sisters, The Singing Swinging Eight and square dance caller Johnny Davidson are the regulars.

Perry Mason

Crime detection series based on stories by Erle Stanley Gardner, starring Raymond Burr as Perry Mason, and featuring Barbara Hale as Della Street and Bill Hopper as Paul Drake.

Danger Man

John Drake is sent to Italy to find a woman in the American diplomatic service in London, who has mysteriously gone to Italy without permission.

Have Gun, Will Travel

Paladin tries to rid a town of a gun-happy sheriff.

CBWT—Men Into Space

McCauley undertakes a dangerous mission to rescue a crew trapped in outer space.

CBWT—Peter Gunn

Peter Gunn uncovers evidence of something amiss in the police department as he hunts down hoodlums who nearly succeed in killing Lt. Jacoby.

Vegetarianism Again

• Re "Why I'm a Vegetarian," by Wm. Stratford:

... It does not seem practical for me, Mr. Stratford, to become a disciple of yours, but you have touched me to the extent that next time a mouse—that "wee beastie" which I've always had a soft spot for—strays into my pantry, instead of killing it, I'll send it to the sanctuary of your home. House flies (too) Mr. Stratford must strain your conviction that it is wrong to destroy life. Have you discovered how to live with them?

You use eggs and milk in your diet, I notice. As a practical farmer, I have a special interest in this matter. A hen has a profitable laying life of two or three years, but they continue to live for years after that. Shall we have homes for aged hens? ... (Also) cows don't always give birth to heifers, you know, and bull calves don't give milk. If we let every bull calf live until it dies of old age, farm women would never dare to leave the house. (My wife is scared to death of my one herd bull, though he is a peaceful old boy, and also a vegetarian.)

It would be expensive to raise sheep just for their wool. Please forgive me, Mr. Stratford, but it seems that your thinking is very woolly in spots.

... I'll take your word for it that we have 30 feet of intestine. After all, we should agree on something, although I have not measured mine yet. But you may be surprised to hear that it is still going strong after 77 years of service.—J.W.G., Bashaw, Alta.

• I would like to reply to Mr. Stratford and Mrs. G. W. of Calgary. While she states that "herbs of the field shall be for meat," it is only half the story. I would refer them to Leviticus 11, to see what God commanded the children of Israel to eat, and what not to eat.—F.G.M., Yorkton, Sask.

University of the Air

A TRIP TO OUTER SPACE

FIRST, MAN SHRANK the world down to size with ships, trains and planes that could take him everywhere, and then with radio and television that could bring just about everywhere to him. Now he is developing powerful new equipment for probing the wonders of the fascinating universe of space. Almost every week newspapers report some development or discovery in the field of astronomy that adds to our knowledge of the heavens.

In the last couple of years, in addition to such exciting discoveries as what the other side of the moon looks like, and the fact that there is water vapour on Venus (the planet most like the earth in size, mass and orbit, and the third brightest object in the sky), another surprise was reported. Astronomers in Britain and California stirred up controversy by publishing papers indicating that the Milky Way galaxy, of which the sun and earth are a part, is possibly much older than was thought, which would throw many scientific calculations out of kilter.

These new discoveries and theories are all the more thrilling to the layman when he has more than just an aesthetic appreciation of the twinkling sky on a clear night. To provide radio listeners with a background of general information about astronomy and help them understand the significance of each new step in our growing knowledge of the heavens, the CBC's University of the Air will present a series of eight lectures on This Universe of Space. They will be heard Monday nights beginning this week. Each program will be repeated two weeks later on Tuesday morning. The program organizer for the series is Lewis Miller, and production will be by Ed Reid.

The speaker will be a distinguished Canadian astronomer, Dr. Peter Millman of Ottawa. Presented in not-too-scientific language the average listener should have no difficulty in understanding, the lectures will cover the significance of new radio telescopes, imaginary visits to the better-known planets, meteors, the sun, stars of all sizes, dusts and gases of space, galaxies, and the history and prospects of the whole universe we live in.

In a newspaper article two years ago Dr. Millman said that the biggest thrill for him since he began studying astronomy as a boy was seeing a picture of the other side of the moon for the first time. "It is as if you had lived in a house for 30 years where one room was locked and could never be entered or even looked into," he said. "The presence of thousands of other unseen rooms in the city does not diminish one bit the unique excitement when at last you are handed a key to the locked room and told: 'Now you can look!'"

For many listeners to this series it will be a first guided tour of the universe, and Dr. Millman will make it a fascinating one. It is a subject that has absorbed his interest for well over 40 years.

Born in Toronto in 1906 he grew up in Japan, where he graduated from high school. He studied astronomy and physics at the University of Toronto, and after graduating in 1929 went to Harvard for further study in astronomy. He obtained his Master's degree there and then his Doctorate in Philosophy in 1932.

He has worked at three of Canada's large research observatories: the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria, B.C., the David Dunlap Observatory at Richmond Hill, just north of Toronto, and the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa. Now he is head of upper atmosphere research at the National Research Council in Ottawa. He is national president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, belongs to several national and international scientific societies, is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, and a research associate of the Harvard College Observatory.

During the Second World War he served in the RCAF, first as a navigation instructor and later in operational research. One of his last service duties was planning the research reporting procedures on winter exercise Musk Ox in 1946.

Through his career Dr. Millman has taken an active interest in acquainting the public with the facts and philosophy of science. He has lectured extensively, and back in 1929 began writing a weekly newspaper column about facts and mysteries of the heavenly bodies. For the past 10 years he has written an astronomy column for the Toronto Telegram. In addition to these and other popular articles he has published more than 100 papers on scientific subjects.

Chiefly, his research has been in the field of meteors and spectra.

Frequently he presents the results of his research in lectures to learned societies on this continent and abroad.

We asked Dr. Millman what he thought the biggest news in astronomy would likely be this year. "As far as I can guess," he told us, "one of the most interesting things probably will be the use of even bigger radio telescopes and the knowledge we will gain, through their use, of the most distant parts of our universe. There's a limit to what we can now see—in round figures it's about 6,000 million light years away.

"The other area in which I think there will be a large advance in knowledge this year is through the use of astronomical telescopes and instruments mounted on artificial satellites and operated by remote control. These will enable us to make observations in the ultraviolet region of the spectrum and x-ray wave lengths, types of light which are absorbed by the earth's atmosphere and don't reach the surface of the earth. They cannot be studied when the instruments are mounted in observatories on earth."

Dr. Millman went on to say that "a further extension of this will be the ability of space probes to carry astronomical equipment close to the moon and planets. The first and outstanding example of this technique was the flight of a Russian space ship to the moon and the photographing of the far side of the moon. This technique will be developed further, but of course the most significant developments in the close-up phase will be a little longer in coming."

Struggle of Wills

"Some women, I know, arrange things so that their homes are reflections of themselves—a gracious background to their personalities. Me and my house are quite different. My house is simply full of character, entirely its own character and not all of it by any means gracious, and I am simply the dim little reflection of it. Being much much older than I am, it obviously regards me as a transient tenant."—Bea Mason, housewife and broadcaster, speaking in a BBC programme about her house.

Repeat Short Stories

ONE OF THE OLDEST arts in the world is storytelling—and one of the most entertaining. When a good yarn finds new dimensions through the voice of a competent narrator, it has special appeal, as listener response to the CBC's many series of short story readings on radio has shown over the years.

Last year the CBC invited a few well-known Canadian writers to submit new work for a series of short story readings on CBC Wednesday Night. They responded eagerly and some interesting and strikingly individual stories were turned in. They were read by professional actors and actresses on various Wednesday Nights last year.

The stories were of such high quality that McClelland and Stewart Limited of Toronto agreed to publish a collection of 10 of them this spring, under the title of Ten for Wednesday Night, with an introduction by Robert Weaver of the CBC, who edited CBC radio short stories. Six of the ten stories are being presented again on CBC Wednesday Night this spring.

Ethel Wilson's From Flores was to be heard on April 5. Miss Wilson is a Vancouver writer who won international acclaim a few years ago for two short novels published under the title of The Equations of Love. Her other published books include Betty Dorval, The Innocent Traveller, and Swamp Angel. The CBC has broadcast several of her short stories, and some have been published in English and Canadian magazines.

Morley Callaghan's The Doctor's Son will be read this Wednesday, April 12. Callaghan is a law school graduate who has had a 30-year career as a novelist, short story

PROGRAM NOTES

POSTMARK U.K.

This week "Thames Watermen." The professional watermen on the Thames have been an organized body since 1555 and in early days they opposed the building of bridges across the river as each bridge meant so many fewer passengers to ferry across. Nowadays there are many specialists among the watermen—river police and the men who man the fire-floats. Arthur Bush takes a trip up the Thames and meets the men who work on the river.

Agatha Christie (Part 1). Agatha Christie, who is seventy, published her first detective story—"The Mysterious Affair at Styles"—in 1920 and since then her Belgian detective, Hercule Poirot, has become famous all over the world. Her elderly detective, Miss Marple, is scarcely less well known. Agatha Christie, who is married to an archaeologist, Professor Max Mallowan, believes that her private life should be strictly private, but she agreed to give a rare and exclusive interview to Joyce Emerson for Trans-Canada Matinee. (Repeated from Trans-Canada Matinee March 1, 1961.)

Man on Parole. Christa Singer, who specializes in documentaries of social enquiry, talks to "Jim Smith" who has returned to society on parole from Kingston penitentiary after serving 20 years of a life sentence for robbery with violence and manslaughter. Mrs. Singer also talks to some of the people who helped "Jim Smith" to return to a useful life in the community. (Repeated from Trans-Canada Matinee February 17, 1961).

WORLD PREMIERES of two commissioned works will be presented this week in a 90-minute radio program of Canadian music from the Montreal studios on CBC Wednesday Night. First performances will be given of Symphony for Strings by Robert Turner, commissioned last year by the Canada Council for the McGill Chamber Orchestra; and Strings in Motion by Jean Vallerand, commissioned by the Lapitsky Foundation. The foundation is a monument to a wealthy Montreal industrialist who was greatly interested in the arts, and who left part of his fortune to foster artistic endeavour in Canada.

The first performances will be presented by the McGill Chamber Orchestra conducted by its founder, composer-violinist Alexander Brott. The program will also include Brott's Songs of Contemplation sung by soprano Marguerite Gignac. The melodies in this four-part cycle were written to poems of the Victorian period. Brott has tried to capture in music the rich flavour of that era of red plush and gaslight.

Intermission speakers will be Eric McLean, music critic of the Montreal Star, Alexander Brott, and Jean Vallerand, who, besides being composer, conductor, lecturer and violinist, is also music critic for Le Devoir of Montreal.

All three composers are Montreal born. Forty-six-year-old Vallerand is an arts graduate of the University of Montreal, where he also obtained his diploma in journalism. He studied violin with Lucien Sicotte and harmony and allied subjects with Claude Champagne. In 1940 he won the Schumann trophy for composition in Quebec. For seven years he was music critic for Le Canada and also wrote for Montreal-Matin. He was lecturer-conductor for Radio-College for eight years, and has conducted for the Opera Guild of Montreal, various CBC programs, and Les Concerts Symphoniques. Now he teaches music and musicography in Chinese Slogans. Myra Roper spent five weeks in mainland China last year, as guest of the Women's Federation, and she talks today about the campaigns being waged by the Chinese Communists to build up industry and eliminate flies, rats, sparrows, etc. Chinese slogans are perhaps the equivalent of North American commercials and Miss Roper says she got very tired of them, but at the same time realized they were necessary. She also tells of hearing a boatman singing on a lake in what she describes as a most romantic setting—and then discovered from her interpreter that he was singing about making steel. Miss Roper is Principal of the University Women's College, University of Melbourne, Australia. She has been visiting Canada and the United States to study educational television and appears regularly on radio and television in Australia.

Arnold Toynbee. Arnold Toynbee recently visited Montreal to address the students at McGill University. While there, he talked with Marion McCormick about world affairs today, the possibility of nuclear war and the chances of survival. Professor Toynbee favours contemplative religions, such as Hinduism, and believes the Christianity will learn from them now

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Rackets That Bloom in the Spring. Several species of sales rackets reappear each spring. Today, Trans-Canada Matinee tells listeners how to identify the scoundrel salesman with his smooth pitch who blackens the name of thousands of good door-to-door salesmen. A woman whose husband is unemployed explains how she and her husband signed a contract to buy an expensive floor polisher, believing that they would get it free by furnishing the names of twenty friends. These are just two of a dozen rackets exposed in this special half-hour feature. Also on the program will be a representative of the Direct Sellers Association, who will tell how to recognize a good salesman, and a Better Business Bureau director, who will explain how complaints are received and followed up.

Imagine our surprise when the first thing we saw as we drove from the airport into Samarkand were posters announcing "Hamlet," performed by a professional Uzbeki cast in their own native language. Imagine also the surprise of finding it not just a second-class provincial performance, but a really serious and imaginative interpretation of the play, worthy to be seen anywhere; but in the audience, not a single Russian—all were Uzbekis, listening enthralled. — John Irwin of London's Victoria and Albert Museum, speaking about a recent visit to Samarkand.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

A Day in the Dogs' Own Borstal. Before the National Canine Defence League of Britain opened its "Dogs' Borstal" just outside London, most animals appearing in court for biting or for causing damage were shot. Now a League representative goes to courts where dogs are being tried and offers to take the animals to his kennels, psychoanalyze them and rehabilitate them. The success has been considerable and when James McLean visited the place he found about sixty dogs there. Mr. McLean, a Canadian freelance writer and broadcaster who now lives near London, talked with the Superintendent, Robert J. Horsfall.

Nellie. When Nellie was born in a log cabin north of Happy Bonnell's village, her father was bitterly disappointed—he'd wanted a boy. But by the time she reached her teens, he used to say that he had the next best thing—a tomboy. Mrs. Bonnell, who has been heard frequently on Matinee since its early days, tells listeners about some of Nellie's escapades.

Consumer Broadcast. Jean Morrison is in her regular Thursday spot with another topic of interest to consumers.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Isabel Wilson of Toronto; Sydney Bryans plays records, and another reading from "Cress Delahanty" by Jessamyn West.

writer, newspaper reporter, dramatist and radio and TV personality. His novels include Such Is My Beloved, More Joy in Heaven, The Loved and the Lost and The Many-Coloured Coat (which won a Maclean's fiction award). Recently the Macmillan Company of Canada published a collection of his short stories under the title of Morley Callaghan's Stories.

Alice Munro, whose A Trip to the Coast will be read April 19, sold a story to the CBC in her student days at the University of Western Ontario, the first of many to be broadcast on CBC radio. Several of her short stories have been published in Canada and now she is working on a first novel. She lives in West Vancouver with her husband and family.

W. O. Mitchell's Patterns, scheduled for reading on May 3, is another of his well-loved tales centered in the imaginary Saskatchewan town of Crocus, which also figured largely in his drama series Jake and the Kid, a popular feature on CBC radio for years. Mitchell taught school until his first novel, Who Has Seen the Wind?, was in print and his second novel won the Maclean's fiction award several years ago. For some time he was fiction editor of Maclean's. Several magazines in Canada and abroad have published his short stories. Most of his writing has a mid-western, small-town flavour. He lives in High River, Alberta.

On May 31 Mordecai Richler's The Summer My Grandmother Was Supposed to Die will be read. Like many of his stories, this one is set in Montreal. Richler is one of the busiest and also one of the most controversial of the younger Canadian writers. He has written four novels — The Acrobats, Son of a Smaller Hero, A Choice of Enemies, and The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz; short stories that have been read on CBC radio and published in Magazines here and abroad; magazine articles, and radio and TV dramas. He returned to Canada recently after having lived abroad for some years in Spain, Paris and London.

One of the most colourful writers represented in the series is Hugh Garner, whose Hunky will be read June 28. During the Depression, Garner rode the rods, later served with the International Brigade in the Spanish Civil War, and in the Royal Canadian Navy in the Second World War. His novels have included Storm Below and Cabbagetown (he's working on another on a Canada Council fellowship). He has been a journalist and dramatist, but he likes best to be known as a writer of short fiction. The Yellow Sweater and Other Stories, a collection of his short stories, was published some time ago by Collins.

The four other stories in the book are Requiem for Bibel by Jack Ludwig, Grandmother and the Doll by Gabrielle Roy, Off the Track by Brian Moore, and Tiger! Tiger! by Gordon Woodward.

Between the years 870 and 930 Iceland was colonized by men of mainly Norse blood, the first of whom established his home at the spot he called Reykjavik - "Steamy Bay" from the hot springs in the neighbourhood. Robert Turner was born in 1920. He studied at McGill University, where he obtained his doctorate, and then at the Royal College of Music in London, England, at the Berkshire Music Centre and the Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn. His teachers have included such well-known people as Douglas Clarke, Claude Champagne, Herbert Howells and Roy Harris. Since 1952 Turner has been a producer of music programs in the CBC's Vancouver studios. His works, including some commissioned by the Vancouver International Festival, the University of Saskatchewan and the Montreal Bach Choir, have been performed all over North America and in England.

bowling hour) and Abat de Rigueur (also on bowling) telecast each week on CBWFT. L'Heure des quilles which will end with the June 25th program, is a province-wide (Quebec) competition involving the 35 best players who had been selected at the end of September 1960 from a roster of 240. These compete according to a preset schedule permitting the elimination of all but the top two who will then be featured in a special final on the last program.

L'Heure des Quilles is seen every Sunday at 4:00 p.m. on Channel 6.

Abat de rigueur seen Friday evenings at 10:45 p.m., is a special champion's competition, in which players are awarded a grand prize of $200 if they manage to make five consecutive strikes. The player with the most points is called upon to return the following week. Although the $200 prize is not always won, nobody goes home unhappy since even the losers take home $25. If more than one player gets his five consecutive strikes, the money is divided equally between them.

Hockey

It should be pointed out that CBWFT does not carry the National Hockey League playoffs and finals, because all programs carried on channel 6 are videotaped or filmed. The one to two-weeks delay would make the telecast of these sports events of very little interest.

On Explorations April 19th

The Days of Whisky Gap

The days of Canada's Wild West were short in duration, thanks to the watchful and efficient scarlet-tunicked mounted policemen who rode west from Toronto in 1874. But the lawless era of our history which gave rise to such picturesque names as "Fort Whoop-Up" and "Whisky Gap," although spanning only a few years, still lives in the memory of a few hardy pioneers. These old-timers will be interviewed on a program April 19, another in the Exploration series.

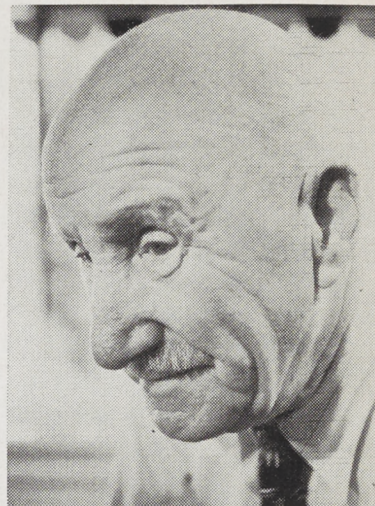

REMINISCENCES of the early Canadian west and exploits of the North West Mounted Police will be featured by CBC-TV's Explorations on Wednesday, April 19, in a half-hour National Film Board production entitled "The Days of Whisky Gap."

Settlement of the Canadian west was achieved with a high degree of law and order in comparison to the wild west era south of the border. Legends accentuate the difference. In Canada, storied legends speak of brave lawmen in scarlet tunics; in the United States, deeds of outlaws highlight stories of the pioneer west.

Much fact and some fiction surrounds the epic stories of the Mounties who made the famous trek from Toronto to the west in 1874. Two hundred and fifty men travelled 800 miles, bringing the Queen's law to the western plains where whisky traders and horse thieves were the cause of much trouble between the Indians and the first white settlers.

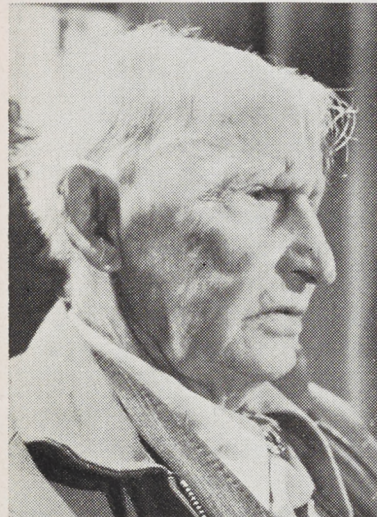

Forts built by the Mounties still dot the western plains, and so do most of the colourful names given some settlements. "Whoop-up" is now Lethbridge; but "Whisky Gap" and "Stand Off" have kept their original names.

Harry Walden of Brandon, Manitoba, was a 103 years old when interviewed. He left England as a boy of 16. He headed out West and became a Scout for the Mounties at Wood Mountain Fort at the age of 20. He bears the scars of arrows to this day. (From the National Film Board production, "The Days of Whisky Gap," to be seen on CBC-TV's "Explorations" on April 19.

Harry Walden, one-time scout for the Mounties, now enjoys a more peaceful life in Brandon at the age of 104. He is one of several people who recall their experiences of the pioneer west in "The Days of Whisky Gap," a National Film Board production directed by Colin Low. Photography is by John Spotton and commentary by Stanley Jackson.

Over on the American side, on warm afternoons in Montana, old John Banaman and his cronies still get together . . . and they talk of the days when a man had to be quick on the draw. And when they remember the old days, they think with ungrudging admiration of their counterparts in scarlet tunics, who brought law and order to the Canadian west. It was a Montana newspaper (The Fort Benton Record) which said, "The Mounted Police don't scare worth a cent."

Mrs. Sarah Card, of Cardston, Alberta, now in her 90's, left her home in Utah when she was 18. Her married sister two years before had journeyed to Canada with the first of the Mormon settlers and there she was to join her. (From the National Film Board production, "The Days of Whisky Gap," to be seen on CBC-TV's "Explorations" on April 19.

WHITE FISH FILLETS

Place a pan in hot oven and add a chunk of butter. Let heat until about to turn brown. Place fillets of fish and turn over (to butter on both sides). Sprinkle with salt, pepper, thyme and minced onion. Poach about 15 minutes. Remove onion and place on heat proof platter. Put under broiler to brown after brushing with oil. Sprinkle with parsley. When fish is poached, the oven should be at 350 degrees.

SCALLOPED POTATOES

6 medium potatoes
6 tbsp. flour
2-3 cups skim milk
1 large onion (thinly sliced)
Salt and pepper

Peel potatoes and slice. Alternate a layer of potatoes, onion, salt, pepper and 2 tbsp. flour until ingredients are used up. Pour over heated skim milk to cover. Dot with butter and bake at 275 degrees for 2½ hours or until top is nicely browned. Remove from oven and let stand for about ½ hour before serving.

TARTAR SAUCE

½ cup mayonnaise
¼ tsp. tarragon
1 tbsp. chopped capers
1 tbsp. chopped olives
1 tbsp. green cucumber relish
¼ tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Mix all ingredients and serve with broiled fish.

FROM OUR MAILBAG

Impressed with Quartet

• On Thursday, Feb. 23rd I was very impressed with the portion of Variety Showcase originating from Montreal, and particularly with the female quartet called Laurie, Jo and the Nash Sisters. I hope it will not be long before we have the pleasure of hearing them again — Mrs. J.R.S., Regina.

Thanks from Library

• The Winnipeg Public Library is very much indebted to CBWT's "Busy Fingers" for a most interesting and attractive display of children's art. It has been circulating among our branches since November, one month in each of the four branches. Children's art has a particular "rightness" in a children's library, and we are very grateful to Mrs. Nickerson for lending the "Busy Fingers" display to us.

Drama Controversy Continues

• . . . After watching drama produced in the CBC-TV studios over the past few years, and particularly Festival '61's presentation of "The Dumb Waiter" and "The Zoo Story,"

I feel compelled to protest the filming of such utter rot and showing of it on TV under the guise of drama.—Miss G.M., Edmonton.

• . . . These criticisms (of "The Dumb Waiter" and "Zoo Story") seem to me to originate from a complete misunderstanding of the dramas. While I admit that they were not easily understandable for viewers used to the "Howdy-Doody" type of program, you might have made this show more accessible and enjoyable by prefacing it with a short analysis. With the introduction of contemporary drama to the greater audiences, one cannot presume them to possess the necessary training to evaluate them. Even if their narrowminded standard of morality (which in this case was completely misapplied) was shocked, they should have been capable of appreciating the outstanding delivery—Mrs. P.O., Edmonton.

• What a thrilling experience it was to see Neil McCallum and Eric House in "The Zoo Story." I thoroughly enjoyed it, and was very moved by McCallum's portrayal of Jerry—Mrs. L.M., Moose Jaw.

Appreciates Music

• Thank you for the music of Taras Gabora (Recital in Miniature). I hope we can hear him more frequently. There is a certain quality of interpretation in his renditions that is most refreshing.—Mrs. J.M.T., Regina.
